people in ATM centers. He also highlighted how people get cheated by charging their mobile phones in public places.

He also spoke about how people get cheated through fake matrimonial sites. He cited certain cases happening in the banking sector.

He advised students to be very careful while using their mobile phones and while doing online transactions. Since most of the teenagers use various mobile applications for transactions, the resource person advised them to be very careful.

The whole session was interactive as students were curious to know about various online frauds happening in the banking sector.

Around 250 students were benefitted from this special guest lecture.

Mrs.A.Rama, Assistant Professor Department of Management Studies proposed vote of thanks.
